Entangle Energy

EXHIBITION

Lines gather, cross and open into fields of colour. In Entangle Energy, Bianca Treviño approaches painting as a space of relationships: each gesture alters the movement of those around it, and each colour takes on a different intensity through its neighbours.

Sweeping arcs meet angular structures, creating passages that can feel expansive, compressed or suspended. The eye follows one route only to encounter another. Forms appear to emerge, dissolve and return within the same pictorial field.

The works bring together painting and drawing through acrylic, Chinese ink, coloured pencil, pastel and graphite. Their layered surfaces hold both broad movements and intimate traces of the hand.

Across the exhibition, energy becomes a way of thinking about connection and transformation. The paintings invite an attentive, physical encounter with colour, rhythm and the shifting relationships between parts and whole.

Opening weekend: 6-8 November 2026

The exhibition continues by appointment until 10 December 2026.

BIOGRAPHY

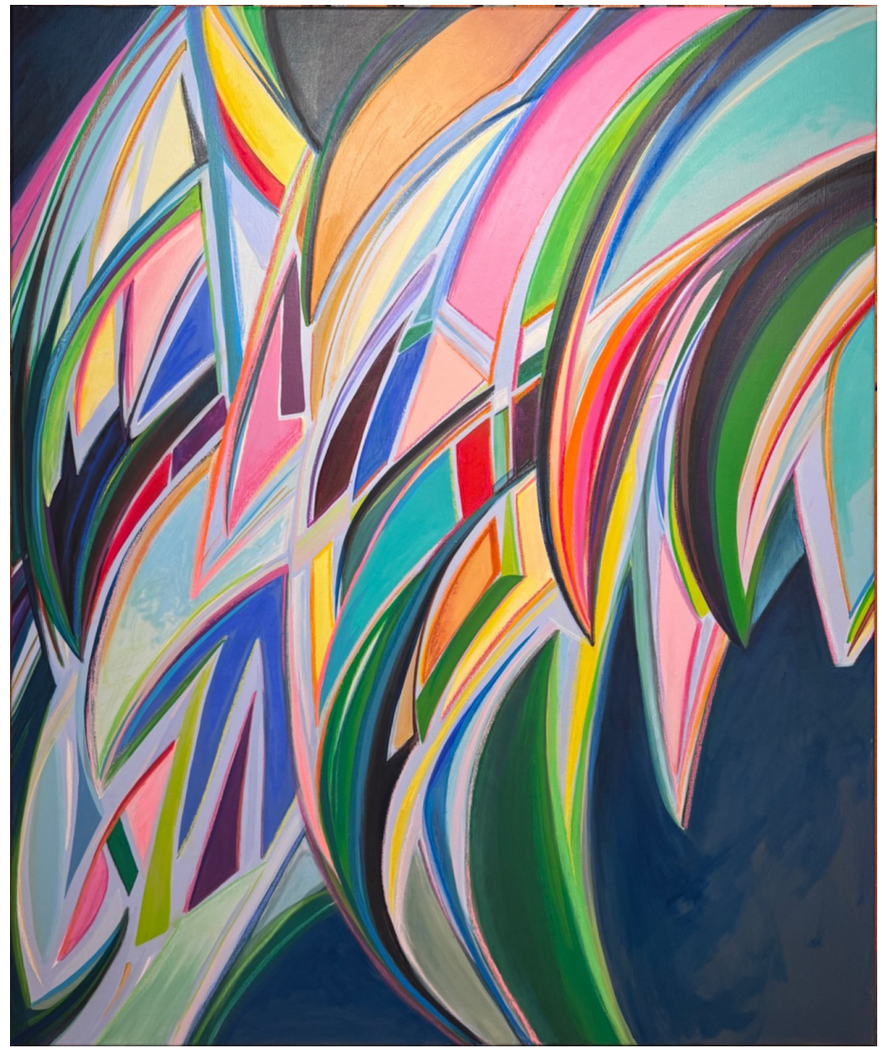

Bianca Treviño (b. 1985) is a Mexican-American visual artist based in Zurich, Switzerland. Working across painting, drawing, sculpture and installation, she explores the connections between human experience, material life and the natural world.

Her practice is shaped by her Mexican-American heritage and a life of living and working across five continents. Encounters with different cultures, landscapes and ways of understanding the world have informed her sensitivity to interdependence: how we shape our surroundings, how they shape us, and how the effects of our actions extend beyond ourselves.

Treviño studied landscape architecture and fine arts at West Virginia University and Chinese scroll painting at the Nanjing Art Institute. These foundations inform a visual language in which spatial structures and geometric forms meet fluid gestures, vivid colour and layered marks.

At the heart of her practice is an understanding of life as an exchange of energy. Thoughts, actions and material choices enter the world and become part of the conditions we inhabit. Her work considers how these exchanges connect personal experience with wider ecological and cultural systems.

In Entangle Energy, intersecting lines and shifting fields of colour give form to this sense of continuous relationship. Her sculptural practice extends the inquiry into the materials we consume and discard, inviting reflection on how everyday choices transform our environment - and how those transformations, in turn, affect us.
